

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Prior to November 5, 2010

Hunter-Wolff Gallery
2510 W. Colorado Ave., Colorado Springs 80904

Art Enthusiasts Invited to Book Signing With Local Author

New book spins a gripping tale of murder and madness aboard a cruise ship

Colorado Springs, CO – On November 5, during First Friday ArtWalk, at Hunter-Wolff Gallery from 5:00 to 8:00 p.m., local author Arleen Alleman will greet art collectors and book lovers to sign copies of her newly released, exciting book, “Currents Deep and Deadly”. In this gripping debut novel, Alleman weaves suspense, danger and intrigue in a tale that will rivet readers. A month-long cruise, complete with descriptions of Caribbean and South American ports, turns into an adventure filled with remarkable coincidences and punctuated with murder, romance, and mystery.

Currents Deep and Deadly is filled with page by page nonstop action and adventure that readers won't be able to put down once they flip the first page. Alleman cleverly intertwines relevant historical points and travelogue descriptions for a believable sense of reality. This unique presentation is written from the perspective of a woman traveler describing terrible yet wondrous events that have a profound impact on her life.

Confirmed cynic, Darcy Farthing is hiding a terrible secret until terrifying events on this month-long cruise reveal her carefully guarded past and threaten to destroy her already fragile psyche. When she unwittingly uncovers a shipboard murder plot events soon spiral out of control. As crew members are dying she is forced to run for her own life and battle a psychotic killer.

Alleman has created a story about life on a fictional cruise ship that fills the mind with questions of “what if”? This action-filled book takes the reader on a journey that just may trigger a booking with your local travel agent.

About the Author

Arleen Alleman is a former analyst with the Government Accountability Office where she wrote extensively on many diverse topics including satellite systems, senior health care, postal operations, endangered species, and plant biodiversity. Despite an education in biology, she is a self-described generalist who also worked as an insurance adjuster, fashion model, and jewelry designer. Her current interests include travel, health and fitness, religious history, and managing her own home décor shop and boutique. Born in England and raised in New Hampshire and Nevada, she now lives in Colorado with her husband, Tim and their cat, Xena. Currents Deep and Deadly is her first novel.

Currents Deep and Deadly is available for purchase through Xlibris, Barnes & Noble, Amazon, or any book store order desk. For more information on this book, log on to www.Xlibris.com. To order copies of the book in advance, call 719-520-9494. Ms. Alleman will sign her new book for the public from 5:00 pm to 8:00 pm at Hunter-Wolff Gallery, 2510 W. Colorado Avenue, Colorado Springs. The book is available in hard cover and paperback and can be purchased directly from the author at www.currentsdeepanddeadly.com

Hunter-Wolff Gallery is located in Old Colorado City at 2510 W. Colorado Avenue, Colorado Springs, Colorado. More details at www.hunterwolffgallery.com or call 719-520-9494.